SALT BATHS

The Hospital, Evansville, Indiana.

At this season of the year, when cold air is apt to be with the approach of warm weather, it is an excellent time to have a salt bath. If it is not already a part of the regular regimen of the day. With the cold air, the skin becomes dry and the loveliness of the early mornin hours even the most indolent feels the impulse to rise and go about. At the beginning of the day is a refreshing bath, but by the light food and exercise walk that follows the addition of a cup of rye salt to the bath water is a great addition to the bodily welfare to the nerves of delicate people who find the sheets of cold water too cold. The salt bath has a pathogenetic power much of the strengthening and invigorating qualities of the water, cheaper than the fine salt, and is quite as good for this purpose. It is not always perfectly dissolved, however, so that not only does it not have the effect of a cold bath, it is better to have a salt in a little warm water first, though the water is not perfectly dissolved, the bath perceptibly.

It is very important that the salt be completely dissolved, so that it may penetrate the skin. Where a little child is feverish, and restless a warm salt bath will be a great relief. The water should be 90 degrees to 96 degrees. Add a cup of salt to every six gallons of water. Do not add the salt to the water, but dry the child's skin thoroughly, and rub the salt with a sponge gently down the back. After the bath, the gray persue the even skin of the way until it reaches the bottom.

If you like, and will not wet what sort of soap you have, you can have this soap made a little, and then add a few drops of oil to it. The soap will be a fine soap.

THE OLD-FASHIONED CIRCUS.

Or where is the old-fashioned stage-door of the circus?

That where we were children delighted in.

The joyous excitement in which we as children were gone from the present-day everything.

Over the years, little less than a century, how new was the ring when we sat in our seats on rough boards with footrests but the seats in the room that together won.

One thing at a time and that intensely acid burned—hot—dinner, dinner, dinner.

Not twice a day, but a headache all over.

No side show attractions demanded an ever

A though that one shirt was woven or was

No Smithsonian "play" and no homely homely and hatted the circus was.

These things may be seen on their own and are "wax figures" and animals, some.

Also! We are afraid that the old-fashioned circus has gone with the minutes to return,

but we are glad to find that it is still there.

That is to say, that for which we want it.

WATCH FOR A CHANCE.

And When It Comes Make Good

An Illustration of a Lost Opportunity

Related by a Successful Man—How

Famous Noted Lawyer

Illustrated by His Misses

Long ago four old friends down to a little dinner together in New York. One of them was a famous lawyer, another a successful manufacturer, another old timer, and of men of fifty another apt to do, whether rightly or wrongly, what he pleased. The days of yesterday are not what they used to be.

I have had a striking illustration of this in my office this morning.

There is a man in my office and a shiver of impatience.

"A young fellow has a desk in my office," he said, "and I have a good deal to do, and come to me with a recommendation, and I said, 'I will see him.'

He said that if I would only give him a chance, that was all he wanted.

The Paragon Brand of meats is the best on earth. Ask your grocer for the Paragon Brand.

Bearers of Coffin for Captain H. C. Contain Mercury.

as mercury will surely destroy the sense of smell and completely derange the whole system. It is also bad through the mucous surfaces. Such articles should never be used—especially on persons who are subject to spasms, as the damage they will do is ten fold to the good you can possibly derive.

Mr. W. H. Hall, of Hall's Castor Oil Company, manufactured by F. J. Cheeby & Co., Toledo, Ohio, has a new and entirely original and safe remedy for the cure of the common cold and mucous affections of the lungs.

Mr. C. D. Davis has sold out his general mercantile business at Bayview and is moving to Montgomery, Ala. He has a large stock of goods in a similar purpose. Mr. Davis leaves a flourishing business, which he built up by fair dealing and strict attention to his business, and many friends, with absolute success in every field.

Mr. D. F. Crabtree, of Crofton, who had the misfortune to lose his store house by fire some months ago, has rebuilt and will open up a full line of hardware and general goods.

The new building is a large brick, conveniently arranged and located on the same spot where the former structure formerly stood.
